THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT,

Hello there,

After many years of relative stability, it was inevitable given the pandemic disruption of the last two-and-a-half years and now the war between Russia and the Ukraine, that new vehicle prices would start rising.

A weakened Kiwi dollar against the yen, the euro, and the US greenback hasn't helped, in spite of the vehicle distributors' best efforts to hedge against that and buy forward

Several new vehicle brands say their recommended retail prices will increase on October 1, and more are likely to follow in the first quarter of 2023.

The costs of materials, production, shipping and distribution have risen in the past 12 month, but forthcoming regulations from the New Zealand Government in the form of the Clean Car Standard (CCS) on January 1, 2023, will cause further price increases.

The reality is that like GST and FBT, the CCS has become yet another cost of doing business for fleets who require tool-of-trade utes and vans powered by petrol or diesel

Extra electrified light commercial vehicles are on their way, but not all will be fit for all fleet purposes, and price parity between internal combustion engine (ICE) vehicles and EVs is still a way off, even with available subsidy.

However, there are plenty of vehicles that will offer a Clean Car subsidy or are Clean Car neutral are appropriate for fleets.

Prudent fleet operators should be looking at replacement vehicles at least 12 if not 18 months out, checking the available option, and placing a forward order.

It also pays not to put all your eggs in one brand's basket. Too often fleets have bought cars on the strength of a relationship, or because they thought they got a better deal by just dealing with one car brand, and getting a volume discount.

Well, the juicy fleet discounts as we knew them once are long gone, even for NZ's highest volume brand.

Every fleet car should be considered on its whole of life costs, fitness for purpose, safety rating, operating comfort, and strength of residual value, not the badge on the bootlid.

On a positive note, because of the restricted availability of new cars in the past 24 months the residuals of secondhand NZ-new vehicles strengthened considerably, especially 4x2 and 4x4 utes. That's great news for commercial fleets whicxh turn over large volumes of them.

I keep a watching brief on some used vehicle yards around Auckland which trade in light commercials and some of them are asking big money for tired old rope.

But they're getting it from buyers who need a work vehicle desperately.

That's the long and the short of it, Enjoy your reading this month.

SCANIA FINANCE ON TRACK FOR FURTHER GROWTH

ince its launch in 2020 Scania Finance has written up loan agreements for more than 300 new trucks and trailers in New Zealand.

Australia and New Zealand Scania Finance director Wayne Thomason says that represents a significant percentage of Scania customers who have used the service in the last two years.

"We're on track to finance far more than this number within the next 12 months, as more customers take the opportunity to obtain solution finance packaging," Thomason says.

A key point of difference is Scania Finance provides customers with confidence that the approved financing will still be in place, subject to minor re-checks, when the vehicle is ready for delivery, he says.

That's a major consideration given current industry-wide long lead-in ordering times and supply-chain challenges.

It was a point not lost on Craig Booth of Palmerston North's Booth's Transport when ordering several Scanias in recent months.

"Being able to arrange financing within the Scania operating system undoubtedly made the entire process of ordering and right through to delivery, significantly easier and more efficient," Booth says.

"Scania Finance spent considerable time understanding our business and growth plans. That gave us a lot of peace of mind knowing they really understood our financing requirements and had designed a bespoke package that we were very happy with."

Thomason says the business model is much more than just offering finance and insurance on a truck. It's about providing total solutions to customers, helping to unlock their business' potential, and being a trusted adviser.

"As Scania's market share and business continues to grow across New Zealand, this tailored financing and insurance opportunity felt like an obvious extension of our service.

"The core appeal of Scania's insurance offer is uptime. Ensuring that vehicles are back on the road as soon as possible after an accident, as well as loss prevention services to avoid an accident in the first place.

"It all helps safeguard the owner's business and revenues."

Thomason says Scania focused, too, on supporting its number one market share for heavy-duty trucks in New Zealand by investing directly in its finance sales team, creating nationwide business development manager roles.

"Having this talented team on the ground working directly with our customers to help fund and insure their new Scania, and in most cases the trailer that runs with that vehicle. has proven to be one of the most valuable benefits of the entire Scania Finance model, particularly for our clients," he says.

GILTRAP FLEET EMBRACES A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

or more than 55 years the Giltrap Group's dealerships have been at the forefront of delivering new automotive technology to fleet customers.

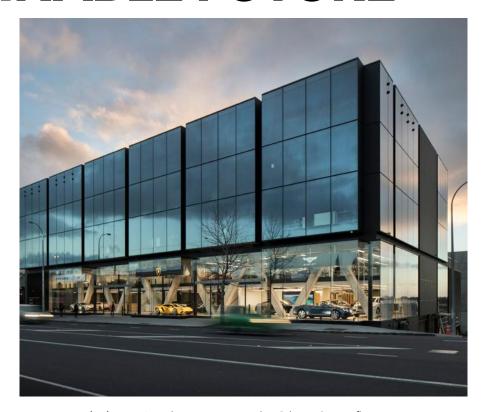

And no more so than now as it embraces different low- and zeroemission vehicles for a sustainable

The privately-held New Zealand familyowned company says it prides itself on being an ethical- and communityminded organisation which prioritises customer satisfaction.

With its retail brand portfolio of more than 18 marques spanning mass market to premium and luxury, the Giltrap Group can use its market scale and expertise to meet the needs of corporate and commercial fleets needing three vehicles to more than Marques on offer include Aston Martin, Audi, Bentley, Cupra, Kia, Jaguar, Land Rover, Lamborghini, Lotus, Lexus, Nissan, McLaren, Polestar, Porsche, Seat, Skoda, Volkswagen passenger and commercial vehicles, and Volvo.

Collectively, the Giltrap Group fleet specialists, led by key account manager Malcolm Davison have more than 200 years of expertise.

The team can provide a full analysis of a client's current pool of vehicles and make recommendations for a safer yet more sustainable future-proofed fleet that's fit for purpose.

The Giltrap Group fleet team can supply passenger cars, SUVs, and light commercial utes and vans as well as luxury and prestige vehicles as one sole supplier, mixing and matching vehicles from the 18 brands to suit a client's requirements.

Continued from previous page In addition, the group has a full turn-key fleet management service, supplying new vehicles nationally, and can dispose of trade-ins.

It can also arrange specialist fit-out of light commercials, and offers a full suite of finance, service plans, and 24/7 roadside assistance.

For fleet owners who might be sceptical about buying zero- or lowemission vehicles such as Hybrid Electric Vehicles (HEV), Battery Electric Vehicles (BEV) or Plug-in Hybrid Electric Vehicles (PHEV), the Group can arrange short-term vehicle subscription packages.

FLEET ELECTRIFICATION

The New Zealand Government's implementation of the Clean Car Standard and Clean Car Discount has hastened the arrival of zero- and lower-emissions vehicles across many different brands represented by the Giltrap Group.

As 2023 approaches the Giltrap fleet team will be able to offer an evergrowing range of electrified vehicles. The current all-electric Audi e-tron family (SUV, Sportback, Sportback S, GT) will be joined in 2023 by a Q4 e-tron and an A6 e-tron.

Cupra, the Spanish challenger brand, will introduce its all-new all-electric Born crossover.

Jaguar Land Rover currently offers the fully electric I-Pace SUV and PHEV options across the Jaguar F-Pace and Land Rover Velar ranges.

Additional electrified vehicles are in the production pipeline as the company moves to a 100% zeroemissions portfolio by 2036.

Kia offers fleets a wide selection of electrified product including the Niro SUV in HEV, BEV, and PHEV configurations as well as the Sorento SUV in HEV and PHEV, and the growing Kia EV6 line-up which is strictly allelectric.

Currently, all Lexus models have a hybrid option, in addition to the UX300e BEV and the NX450h+ PHEV. The all-new RZ450e BEV is expected to arrive in 2023.

Polestar, the electric performance brand, has been well received by New Zealand buyers but the Polestar 2 is yet to be joined by its SUV siblings the Polestar 3 and the Polestar 4.

Skoda currently offers two PHEV wagons, the Octavia iV and the Superb iV, which will be joined by the all-electric Enyag iV in 2023.

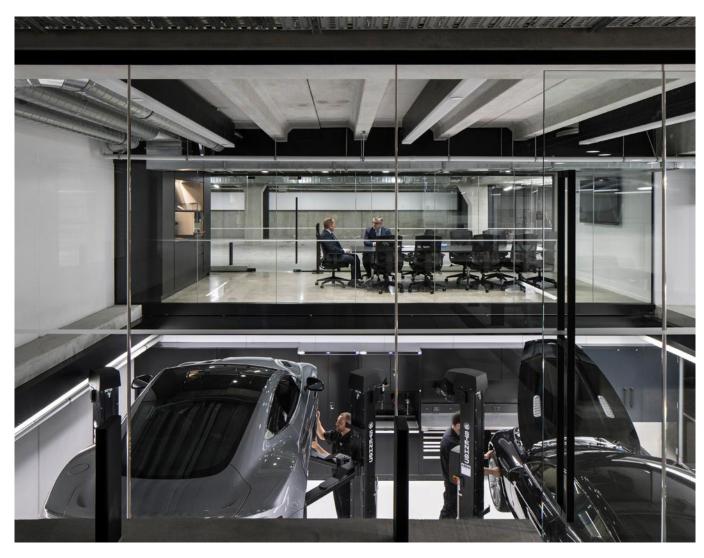

Volkswagen Commercial Vehicles has launched the Multivan 7 PHEV which will be joined soon by the all-electric ID.Buzz and ID.Buzz Cargo in early 2023.

Volkswagen Passenger Cars will launch the Touareg R PHEV in early 2023, followed by the all-electric ID.4 GT SUV and the ID.5 GT SUV.

In mid 2023, Giltrap expects PHEV versions of the Golf 8, Passat and Tiguan to arrive.

Volvo Cars currently offers the XC40 Recharge BEV, XC60 T8 PHEV, and XC90 T8 PHEV. They'll be joined soon by the all-new crossover C40 Recharge BFV.

No timeline has been announced for the all-new XC90 replacement or the all-new XC60 Recharge.

BYD AUCKLAND SIGNS FLEET DEAL WITH EUROPCAR NZ

YD Auckland has supplied Atto 3 battery electric SUVs to Europear NZ to rent exclusively from its three airport locations.

Atto 3s are available now for short-, mid- or long-term rental from Europear's Auckland and Wellington locations and from Christchurch later this month.

The Chinese EVs are the latest addition to align with Europear Mobility Group's policy of offering "attractive alternatives to vehicle ownership, in a responsible and sustainable way."

Europcar's Atto 3s incorporate the larger of BYD's lithium-ion phosphate (LFP) Blade batteries - a 60kWh unit giving range of up to 420km on a single charge.

Europear Mobility Group Australia and New Zealand managing director Benoit Garel says the company is committed to driving down carbon emissions in all the markets it operates

The arrival of the Atto 3 is a significant step in the group's carbon emission reduction plans.

"Local charging infrastructure is strengthening and consumer demand for alternative lower-emission vehicles is increasing," Garel says.

"As a business, we're continuing to evolve on sustainability measures and by introducing more electric and lowemission hybrid vehicles into our fleet, we're helping our customers achieve their own sustainability objectives.

"New vehicles such as the Atto 3 also provide an opportunity for drivers to experience driving an EV for the first time," he says.

Prices for monthly rental of the Atto 3 from Europear are from $274 per week (incl GST).

Europear says customers can expect more electric hire options with a variety of EVs expected to join its New Zealand fleet by the end of the year.

BYD Auckland brand manager Theng Lok says it's the first significant fleet delivery for the Broadway, Newmarket, dealership.

BYD Auckland is part of The Landseer Group (Andrew Simms), which has had a significant relationship with Europear NZ for more than 10 years.

Lok says the availability of the Atto 3 for rental through Europear NZ will complement dealership test drives. At Newmarket, he has four demonstrators which are fully booked for 30-minute test drives every weekend.

"The ability to rent an Atto 3 from Europear NZ will enable potential customers to drive a car for much longer periods," he says.

BYD New Zealand has hit a major milestone confirming 500 customer registrations in September and has many more presales to fill as shipments continue to arrive.

The fast track to 500 registrations doesn't surprise BYD New Zealand manager Warren Willmot.

"Demand has completely exceeded our expectations and the speed at which we've reached 500 customer sales is monumental."

Globally, BYD is also doing "exceptionally well" with a record month of international sales of 174,915 new energy vehicles (NEV) in August, Willmot says.

More than 18,625 were Atto 3, an increase of 282% over August 2021.

BYD says it aims to accelerate global electrification and cool the earth by 1°C and drive a greener world. By this September more than 13.8 billion kg of carbon emissions had been saved.

REFRESHED MG ZS EV MAINTAINS PRICE LEADERSHIP BY ROBERT BARRY

aking account of competitors like BYD entering the New Zealand market, MG Motor NZ says its refreshed ZS EV will maintain its price leadership.

For now, the entry level Excite costs $49,990 driveaway, and the upscale Essence is $53,990 driveaway.

The company says more than 1000 customers have placed orders and 500 vehicles are on the water.

MG Motor Australia and New Zealand chief executive Peter Ciao says he's trying to get more cars from the Chinese factory.

The 2022 ZS EV has an exterior makeover, complemented by new battery technology that delivers a driving range of 320km measured on the WLTP cycle. That's a lift from the 2021 model's 263km.

New on-board charging capabilities mean up to 80% charging time in 54 minutes, based on a 50kW combined charging system (CCS).

A revised front fascia announces ZS EV's electric propulsion while retaining the front-mounted charging port. There are LED lighting clusters front and rear.

The new ZS EV will also offer owners its own app-based software architecture, known as iSmart, which is backed by Amazon's AWS cloud-based system. It allows owners to perform overthe-air updates, remote-control AC and door locking, access real-time navigation, 'find my car' carpark search, live weather updates, and stream audio from Amazon Music.

Both the Excite and Essence come in a range of five colours: Brighton Blue Metallic, York White, Pebble Black, Sloane Silver Metallic, and Diamond Red Metallic.

Ciao says the new ZS EV SUV heralds a new phase of growth for MG and a new corporate identity (CI) strategy.

He says the new Take Charge branding and corporate identity will tie in with a broader, customer-centric growth strategy that is experience-driven and enabled by data and technology.

"This transformation of culture, operations, and outcomes is a big part of our future DNA," he says.

"It begins with a broader consideration of the role MG has in the lives of our "Part of this is a new premium look and feel that complements each vehicle that'll be showcased in a way that speaks to the product expectations of our existing and new customer base.

"While value will remain at the core of our product offering, value means different things to different people, and we want to deliver that value to as many people as we can."

Ciao says the past year has been "incredible" for MG. In 2021, sales of electric vehicles broke records and MG's ZS EV was part of that shift.

"Our seven-year warranty is comprehensive across ICE, electric and batteries with no hidden exclusions," he says

FIRST DRIVE IMPRESSIONS

We drove MY22 Essence model from central Auckland to Helensville during the media launch.

The quiet but strong engine performance and friendly handling of the previous generation remain, but the updated central touchscreen is much more user-friendly and is faster to operate.

The lane keep assist felt a little aggressive at times on the Northwestern motorway but the active cruise control works well and maintains a safe distance from the vehicle in front.

The fit and finish remain impressive for the pricetag, and the multi-adjustable driver's seat will prove comfortable on a long journey.

HALO R MODEL JOINS REFRESHED T-ROC RANGE

olkswagen New Zealand has added a high-performance R model to its refreshed T- Roc small SUV range.

The German brand says small SUVs continue to be a growing segment in New Zealand, and it wants to strengthen its T-Cross and T-Roc ranges, but that also means the Polo small hatchback will be dropped.

The $68,990 221kW/400Nm 2.0-litre TSI T-Roc R all-wheel drive (AWD) with a seven-speed gearbox and launch control replaces the 140kW 2.0-litre TSI T-Roc R-Line AWD ($54,990) as the range's flagship.

Customers can opt for a threeyear/45,000km service pack for $1645 or a five-year/75,000km service pack for $3245 for the T-Roc R.

Mirroring its high-performance Golf and Tiguan siblings, the T-Roc is available in the R-exclusive Lapiz Blue colour and gets unique front and rear bumpers, air intakes, blue brake callipers with R logo, sports side skirts, and body-coloured rear spoiler.

It's further differentiated from other T-Rocs by an upgraded Discover Pro navigation infotainment system, an R-exclusive interior design, IQ Matrix LED headlights with automatic high beam assist, and a blue LED light bar.

An Akrapovic sport exhaust is optional on the T-Roc R, which has a multilink rear suspension rather than the torsion beam axle of its less powerful siblings.

It also has dynamic chassis control adaptive dampers, and 19-inch Estoril alloy wheels shod with 235/40/R19 low-profile tyres.

FROM FUN TO FLEET FOCUSED

The other three T-Rocs are front-wheel drives powered by a 110kW/250Nm 1.4-litre TSI engine mated to an eightspeed automatic gearbox.

Prices start from $41,990 for the T-Roc Life, $45,990 for the T-Roc Life Plus and $53,490 for the T-Roc R-Line FWD. Customers can opt for a threeyear/45,000km service pack for $1295 or a five-year/75,000km service pack for $2595.

The trio is cost-neutral under the Government's Clean Car scene but the flagship R attracts a $1670 levy at the time of going to press.

LED headlights, travel and emergency assist, and wireless phone charging are standard across the four T-Rocs.

The front-wheel drives have a generous boot space of 445 litres with the rear seats in situ and 1290 litres with the seats folded down.

Upgraded specification for the Life models includes paddle shifters on the steering wheel, matt decorative inserts on the dashboard, Life fabric upholstery and an eight-inch multifunction display instrument cluster.

Additionally, the 1.4 TSI R-Line has progressive steering, heated steering wheel and front seats, electronicallyadjustable driver's seat, Nappa leather upholstery with carbon styling and an easy open and close tailgate.

Towing capacity on the front-wheel drive cars is 670kg/1500kg (unbraked/ braked) while the R can handle 750kg/1700kg.

All have a 55 litre fuel tank, the 1.4 models require a minimum of 95 RON petrol and the R requires a minimum of 98 RON.

STAGGERED LAUNCH FOR PEUGEOT'S ELECTRIFIED 308

eugeot's new 308 GT plug-in hybrid electric vehicle (PHEV) will arrive in New Zealand showrooms in late December, following the 308 petrol hatchback models in late October.

The fully electric e308 hatchback and e308 station wagon (SW) are expected to arrive in local dealerships in 2023, following their European debuts.

Peugeot says it's the first European manufacturer to offer a 100% electric station wagon.

The e308 and e308 SW will be powered by a new electric engine developing 115 kW and with a range of more than 400 km (WLTP cycle) depending on the level of equipment.

Peugeot quotes consumption of an average of 12.7 kWh.

A new 18-inch aluminium wheel has been developed specifically for the e308 and e308 SW. Its aerodynamic efficiency is designed to optimise performance.

The battery is also new. It's a 54 kWh high-voltage unit (51 kWh useful) with a new chemical composition of 80% nickel, 10% manganese, and 10% cobalt, and operates at 400 volts. Further details on local pricing and specifications will be available closer to launch time.

VOLKSWAGEN PRICES ID.4 PRO UNDER CLEAN CAR THRESHOLD

o begin its all-electric vehicle offensive in 2023, Volkswagen New Zealand will market the ID.4 Pro at a driveaway price of $79,990 which is below the Clean Car Discount $80,000 threshold.

It has priced the ID.4 Pro+ at $89,990 plus on road costs. The ID.5 Pro is priced from $85,450 plus on road costs and the ID.5 Pro+ is priced from $94,490 plus on road costs.

"We believe our model line-up positions us extremely well within the EV market segment," says Volkswagen Passenger Vehicles general manager Greg Leet.

"To launch the ID. product range with our mid-sized ID.4 SUV below the New Zealand Government Clean Car rebate threshold of $80,000 was imperative.

"We believe this will be very important in helping to support our customers that choose to transition to an electrified Volkswagen.

"We're very fortunate to be in this position, as New Zealand will be one of the first countries outside of Europe and the USA to launch the ID. model range," he says.

The ID.4 Pro and ID.4 Pro+ both have a 77kWh (Net) battery with an approximate range of 485km (combined WLTP).

The electric motor produces 150kW of power and 310Nm of torque.

Other features include aerodynamic 19-inch Hamar alloy wheels, 10-inch colour touchscreen and a Twist and Go ignition that is exclusive to the ID.

The ID.4 aPro+ adds IQ. Light Matrix LED headlights with front LED light bar, 12-inch Discover Max colour touchscreen, and Premium sound system.

The ID.5 Pro and ID.5 Pro+ share an approximate range of 485km.

The ID.5 coupe SUV gets a sporty exterior treatment with two-tone colours and inside features the 12-inch Discover Max colour touchscreen and Premium sound system (exclusive to PRO+). The ID.5 PRO+ also features ID. exclusive 20-inch Drammen alloy wheels.

PARTNERSHIP HELPING NZ TRUCK FLEETS KICK THE CARBON

overnment-funded future energy centre Ara Ake is working with major road freight and transport companies to help them better assess the options and costs for decarbonising their fleet.

It's partnering with H.W. Richardson Group (HWR) and Freightways to assess the total cost of ownership of different low-emissions fleet options.

Auckland University of Technology (AUT) will carry out the work using the publicly available total cost of ownership (TCO) tool developed by Ara Ake.

Ara Ake chief executive Dr Cristiano Marantes says the tool enables the comparison between vehicles powered by fuel cells (green hydrogen), battery, drop-in and conventional biodiesels, standard diesel internal combustion engine vehicles, and the most recently added diesel/hydrogen blended fuel.

The tool incorporates a set of inbuilt assumptions based on publicly available information like vehicle capital costs, the cost of various fuels including electricity, the loads the vehicles carry, driver wages, maintenance, and road user charges.

The AUT team will support HWR and Freightways to gather and input their own data into the tool.

"This tool will enable transport companies to make more informed decisions when purchasing or leasing their vehicles, and we see it supporting a hard-to-abate sector in making longterm progress in their decarbonisation goals," Marantes says.

Ara Ake, known formerly as the National New Energy Development Centre, was launched by the Government in July 2020 with $27 million in funding.

Its aim is to lead the development of new clean energy technologies and work with businesses to commercialise innovations creating high-paying local jobs.

Venture Taranaki, the region's economic development agency, was given responsibility for setting it up.

Energy and resources minister Dr Megan Woods says the total cost of ownership tool is about using an evidence-based approach that will "prepare New Zealand for the future and best position New Zealand globally".

Freightways' fleet is predominantly powered by diesel, and AUT will be using its data to ensure the tool is kept relevant to the New Zealand market.

"We're looking forward to using this tool, as it's very useful to determine our best emissions reduction pathways for our heavy vehicle fleets and enhance strategic business decisions," says Freightways safety general manager Michael Claydon.

Meanwhile, Invercargill-based H.W. Richardson Group has been leading a project to introduce a blended diesel/ hydrogen fuel option to its fleet.

A normal internal combustion engine diesel truck can be retrofitted to enable hydrogen to be blended in the combustion chamber. HWR plans to have 10 dual-fuel trucks on New Zealand roads by the second quarter

"The TCO tool will prove very valuable when making decisions on future transport assets," says HWR group chief executive Anthony Jones.

"It's great to see a dual-fuel such as the blended diesel/hydrogen option that we're going to be using, included in the tool, and to have the ability to compare it to other fuels," he says.

MAINFREIGHT HIGHLIGHTS EV TRANSPORT STRATEGY

ainfreight is focusing on battery electric vehicles and battery swap electric vehicles as a way to supplement its fleet and help decarbonise road freight.

The New Zealand-based freight giant has released its Sustainability Overview 2022 which outlines transport sustainability measures it's taking.

"Low-emission heavy vehicles are going to be critical in efforts to decarbonise road freight," the company says.

It says road freight is currently a growing source of emissions.

However, it says the rate of innovation and development in zero-emission technologies is "exciting but still has some way to go before widespread adoption".

"Our current explorations focus on supplementing our fleet with battery electric vehicles and battery swap electric vehicles.

"Hydrogen fuel cell electric vehicles and hydrogen dual fuel vehicles don't currently feature in our fleet mix but remain technologies of interest."

In New Zealand, Mainfreight has four Fuso eCanters which operate in Auckland and Hamilton. Options for a further 10 are being considered.

The full electric eCanter features a 81kWh lithium ion battery which allows 120-150km range and can be charged within an hour.

The light-duty EV has 135kW of power, an electric motor with two-stage regenerative braking, a 3.5 tonne payload, and advanced safety features.

Meanwhile, the E700 with battery swap is being installed as New Zealand's first heavy intercity general freight model, operating between Auckland and Hamilton.

Mainfreight will operate its own battery swapping and charging infrastructure in Hamilton using energy generated by its onsite solar installations.

"Battery swap electric vehicles offer an attractive solution to several of the drawbacks in hydrogen fuel cell electric vehicles and battery electric vehicles.

"Specifically, it takes advantage of battery electric lower operating costs but overcomes the range, charging time and payload restraints, by having smaller quick to charge batteries.

"This allows the use of lithium ferrous phosphate batteries rather than lithium ion which are safer, more stable and less environmentally harmful.

"We expect this vehicle will reduce our road freight emissions by over 100 tonnes of CO2-e per year," the company says.

In Australia, Mainfreight has eight new electric truck builds underway including two Hino 300 SEA 85s and six Foton iBlues.

Both have a range of about 200km and operating payloads between 2.5 tonnes and over five tonnes.

It expects all eight EVs to be on Australian roads before the end of the year predominantly serving major metro areas.

In Europe, the company has brought on two new EVs with one DAF and one MAN e-TGM to serve Tilburg in the Netherlands.

Tilburg was among the first Dutch cities to impose a ban on fossil fuel vehicles in major urban areas that is due to come into effect from 2025. Mainfreight says it will look at serving more of Europe over time with a zeroemission fleet.

Overall, the company has a road fleet policy agreed with owner/drivers which requires vehicles in its fleet be no older than 10 years.

"Our fleet age on average is around five to six years. This compares with national average fleet ages of around 14 years for Europe, the United States and Australia and around 18 years in New Zealand.

"As a result, the majority of our fleet are the equivalent of Euro V or VI. More modern vehicles aren't just more fuel efficient, they also produce fewer particulate pollutants that can affect air quality and local health outcomes," it Mainfreight is looking to rail and coastal shipping to reduce emissions.

"Often forgotten amongst the glitz and glamour of new technologies, the humble train or coastal ship offers immediate emissions reductions," the company says.

"Mainfreight have invested heavily in supporting infrastructure for rail and coastal freight modes, including inbuilt rail sidings at many of our branches that allow us to offer seamless integration of these service types," it adds.

or Toyota Yaris Cross.

So to the powertrain. Its 114kW/200Nm output is humble on paper, and as it turns out it's also fairly humble in the metal.

Drivers with fond memories of Mazda's early noughties SP20 hot hatch should probably park those at the door because this is no hot SUV.

Quick enough is perhaps better phrasing, with the occasionally coarse 2.0-litre capable of moving with enough aplomb to appease the average crossover customer.

More relevant is the M-Hybrid's potential fuel economy gains. Again, there are no big headline numbers to be had here.

Mazda quotes a potential combined economy of 7.0 litres/100km and we saw best figures of 6.5 litres/100km, a number I've previously achieved in the 2.5-litre non-hybrid Mazda3.

OUR VIEW

Is the CX-30 a disappointing hybrid? Possibly, although to focus only on its mild-hybrid powertrain living up to what it says on the tin would be to miss the greater point of the CX-30.

Though there are undoubtedly more frugal and mechanically sophisticated cars in this class, precious few are so welcoming and homely.

LOW EMISSION CITROEN SHINES BRIGHTLY WORDS & PICTURES: ROBERT BARRY

he implementation of the Government's Clean Car strategy combined with ongoing supply chain disruption has become a headache for many fleet buyers.

But they've been a godsend for European brands like Citroën who can offer low-emission vehicles which sit in the neutral or rebate category.

With a CO2 emission figure of 166q/ km the revamped Citroën C3 Aircross Shine small SUV sits in the cost neutral zone of the Clean Car Discount (146grams/km to 192g/km), only 20gm away from a potential rebate.

Wiseley, Citroën has elected to market iust one version of the C3 Aircross, the comprehensive Shine specification for $38,990.

As well as new and more aggressive frontal design, the revised C3 Aircross also offers new seat construction to provide greater occupant comfort on which the brand prides itself.

THE NUMBERS

Powered by the perky and rorty PureTech three-cylinder 1.2-litre turbocharged petrol engine matched to a six-speed automatic gearbox, the C3 Aircross isn't short of character or a decent turn of speed.

But it's a fairly chunky beast with a kerb weight of 1188kg which affects its fuel consumption. The quoted zero to 100km/h sprint takes 10.6 seconds.

Towing capacity is 840/1620kg (unbraked/braked) and it has a 45-litre fuel tank.

NZ importer Auto Distributors NZ auotes combined fuel consumption of 7.3 litres/100km but we were hard pressed to get into single digits like 9 litres/100km, though we used the car mainly for short urban hops.

The sole option on the C3 Aircross is an opening panoramic roof with electric interior blind for an additional $2990.

A three-year/45,000km service plan costs an extra $1590 or a fiveyear/75,000km service plan is an additional $2790.

OUTSIDE

Citroën has discarded the cute and friendly front-end design of the previous C3 Aircross for a new signature look with an assertive and unique identity inspired by the Cxperience concept car and introduced on the new C3 hatch.

A new headlight design combines LED lights with upgraded chrome-trimmed chevrons.

And the C3 Aircross also sports a new grille with a new geometric pattern and a silver-grey skidplate with coloured inserts.

The design is enhanced by lower-body and wheelarch protections, front and rear skidplates, and roof bars.

And though the C3 Aircross is available only in one model grade, Citroën offers a range of body colours and colour packs with a total of 70 possible combinations.

There are seven body colours, Bianca White (solid), Khaki Grey (solid) and the metallic options are Cumulus Grey, Nimbus Grey, Nera Black, Pepper Red, and Voltaic Blue.

The four colour packs - Black, White, Orange, and Blue - include the front lower bumper trims, wing mirror shells, and the rear quarter window trim.

Customers can choose between two roof colours: white or black, with gloss black painted roof bars.

The White colour pack is available with all seven paint colours but the orange and blue packs aren't available with the Pepper Red paint.

INSIDE

All New Zealand C3 Aircrosses have a Metropolitan Graphite interior, which includes black leatherette and grey cloth upholstery.

There are "advanced comfort" seats, driver seat with height adjustment and armrest, map pockets on the front seabacks and a grey cloth dashboard finish with chrome air vents and gloss black trims.

A nine-inch touchscreen dominates the central dashboard and is still the only way to regulate the heating, ventilation and sound system as well as the navigation and other vehicle functions.

Citroën says adding an extra 15mm of foam in the seats makes for more comfort, thanks to a combination of a high-density sheet in the centre of the seat and thicker, structured foam.

Further functionality is provided by a new central console featuring a large storage space at the rear that can be accessed by front- and back-seat passengers and closed with a sliding shutter.

There's also a a small tray ahead of the front passenger, and more cup holders are built into the folding central backrest on the rear bench seat.

For people who need to move stuff occasionally, the front passenger seat folds flat and provides a load length of up to 2400mm.

The rear bench seat can slide 150mm fore and aft in two parts for great load flexibility.

Boot volume can be increased from 410 litres to 520 litres with the rear bench in its forward-most position and up to 1289 litres with the rear bench seatback folded down.

As you'd expect from a mass market European brand, the C3 Aircross is laden with active and passive safety tech including a colour head-up display that keeps useful information in the driver's line of vision.

There are also traffic sign recognition, active safety brake, tyre pressure monitoring, and automatic high/lowbeam control.

It also features lane departure warning, park assist and top rear vision reversing camera, which displays the environment behind the vehicle on the touchscreen

Uniquely for this segment the frontwheel drive C3 Aircross has grip control with hill descent assist.

The system enables drivers to adjust front-wheel traction depending on the terrain and maintain speed when descending hills, even on steep inclines.

We can see this function being beneficial for rural users on unsealed surfaces, or leisure seekers who venture to the ski fields regularly.

OUR VIEW

Putting the new front face aside, the new C3 Aircross is still a great daily driver, thanks to its combination of a higher seating position which makes getting in and out easier for people with reduced mobility.

The short-but-tall body style provides plenty of space inside for up to five occupnats, yet its compact footprint makes for a very manoeuvrable vehicle in which parking in constrained places is a doddle.

In a sea of mundane banality in the small SUV/Crossover space, the Aircross offers character in both sight and sound, a bit of fun-to-drive, and a bit of joie de vivre.

It won't be everyone's cup of tea or cafe au lait.

But in an era where fleets must look outside the usual supply chain for a safe, functional, and economic vehicle that isn't going to be compromised by additional Clean Car fees, the business case for the C3 Aircross becomes more compelling.

NEW RANGER A MASTERCLASS IS VEHICLE DEVELOPMENT WORDS & PICTURES: MATTHEW HANSEN

hat do you do when you make a segment-leading product?

Though some companies might be tempted to rest on their laurels, Ford and its ever-popular Ranger take a different approach.

The new Ranger is a masterclass in taking an already exceptional product and making it even better.

Though most of its peers seem to be playing the waiting game in terms of big, grand updates, Ford has gone the other wav.

It has added even more polish to an already hard-to-fault vehicle. People who don't think the Ranger is the best in class will need to present one heck of an argument.

THE RANGE

The Ranger better be good given that it's arguably the most expensive nameplate in class. The line-up begins at $46,990 for the single-cab XL with the single-turbo 2.0-litre diesel, positioned just a few grand cheaper than Toyota's entry-level SR5 double-

Of course, Ford's pricing comes with the caveat that customers often get discounts off sticker. But I digress.

For our test, Ford handed us the keys to the pictured XLT 4x4 double-cab and Wildtrak 4x4 double-cab. That's no accident as these are probably the two most important trim levels in the range: a pair of likely starters for fleet customers and private buyers.

The XLT line-up starts at $64,990 for the super-cab 4x4, with the doublecab another $2000. The XLT and Wildtrak are exclusively four-wheel drive, with two-wheel drive available only in the XL trim level.

Both models incur a Clean Car levy: the XLT's $1840 fee dwarfed by the Wildtrak's $3910.

TECHNICAL

Under the bonnet the XLT gets the familiar 154kW/500Nm 2.0-litre biturbo and the Wildtrak gets either the same 2.0 or a new-to-the-model 184kW/600Nm 3.0-litre V6 turbodiesel.

In spite of the Wildtrak's additional twist, it has the same 3500kg tow rating as the XLT. The XLT actually squeezes in a slightly higher payload rating, thanks to its more heavy-duty suspension

Spec-sheet warriors might scoff at the Wildtrak not getting a boosted tow rating, but those who tow regularly know that not all 3500kg-rated utes are quite equal.

Although the Wildtrak doesn't get to flex its muscles on paper, its segmentbest torque figure guarantees it a spot at the pointy end of the field when it comes to towing.

Although the Ranger still sits on T6 architecture, Ford has given the platform an almighty refresh, reworking the frame, transfer case, and suspension while also pushing out the wheels an added 50mm to increase the wheelbase.

The latter makes the Ranger more manoeuvrable and better off-road thanks to improved approach and departure angles. It also potentially frees up a bit of space in the Ranger's chassis for a hybrid system down the

THE DRIVE

Powertrain and ride quality are arguably where the Ranger gains the most ground over peers like the Toyota Hilux and Mitsubishi Triton.

This is the most insulated and comfortable Ranger yet, setting a new benchmark when it comes to driver isolation and the comfort capabilities of a body-on-frame vehicle.

Potholes, surface changes, gravel; each is glossed over by the Ranger's impeccable damping.

At the Ranger's launch, Ford boasted that the 2.0-litre's chief refinements include NVH improvements, more robust pistons, and a new oil filtration system among other changes.

The 2.0 was already one of the quietest diesel engines, but now it seems even quieter, kicking into life with a relative whisper compared to the Mazda BT-50 we drove in the weeks following.

Oddly enough it feels a little punchier off the mark, too, in spite of losing 3kW between generations.

The 3.0-litre isn't particularly quiet, and it's all the better for it. Plant your right foot, and it makes all manner of turbo whooshes and whistles.

It's rapid, too, capable of hitting 100km/h in a little over eight seconds (making it roughly two seconds quicker than the outgoing Raptor).

It may be something of an antithesis to the electrification revolution, but there's no denying that the F-150derived PowerStroke unit is fabulous

It was even sort of efficient during our testing, returning best figures of 10.5 litres/100km. Not bad when the 2.0 is returning 9.5l/100km.

Both have Ford's trusty 10-speed automatic to thank in part for their credible responsiveness.

It can still be a little fussy as it decides which of the 10 ratios to use at any given moment, but each time I'm reunited with this 'box it feels like Ford has made it more predictable.

The Ranger can also claim to be the most high-tech competitor in class.

The XLT and Wildtrak both get portrait-orientated touchscreens (10-inch in the XLT, 12-inch in the Wildtrak) and an eight-inch digital

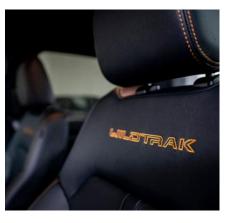

Each comes paired with SYNC 4, which is improved in leaps and bounds over SYNC 3 in terms of presentation and features.

Wireless phone connectivity, crisp cameras, and a handy one-touch system that brings up all your offroading functionality on to the touchscreen with one click are highlights.

The Ranger's cabin feels more spacious than before, although this isn't necessarily felt by back seat passengers.

There, leg room still feels a little compromised for adults, which is a slight disappointment given the Ranger's increased wheelbase.

Another concern is the complexity of the Ranger's handsome dashboard. To make the dash more customisable to individual specs (allowing for trim levels like the Wildtrak to gain plenty of soft-touch areas), the dash has been cut and quartered. We observed a few ill-fitting panel gaps, and a handful of creaks in Rangers we've sampled so

OUR VIEW

It's not perfect, but the new Ford Ranger comes quite close. It should be no surprise that it's already a sales hit, with local availability effectively ruled out for the rest of the year as Ford deals with a mountain of pre-orders.

The updated Ranger is not only a great ute. It represents another turning of the tides in a segment once rife with competitors that would shy away from regular updates and refinements for fear of hurting their bottom dollar.

Ford has sunk an enormous amount of investment into the Ranger, and it shows.

All that's missing is electrification, although in the case of the Ranger, that's lurking just around the corner.

BEST VALUE BASE MODEL WORDS & PICTURES: ROBERT BARRY ROBERT BARRY

ften, the entry level version of a new vehicle is the most underrated and the best value, particularly from a fleet perspective.

And the entry level 58kWh rear-wheel drive Hyundai Ioniq 5 SUV priced from $79,990 is another base model beauty, particularly as it's the only variant which qualifies for the full Clean Car Discount of $8250.

Factoring in the generous government subsidy, the volatility of fossil fuel prices, and the very strong residual values that battery electric vehicles are commanding in the secondhand market, the 58kWh Ioniq 5 becomes a fiscal no-brainer for fleet purchasing.

THE NUMBERS

Hyundai describes the Ioniq 5 as a midsize crossover utility vehicle offering the interior space of a much larger vehicle.

At 4635mm long, 1890mm wide and 1605mm tall with a 3000mm wheelbase (100mm longer than a Palisade) it still has a significant footprint.

It provides 531 litres of boot space, which increases to almost 1600 when the second-row seats are fully folded.

For versatility, the second-row seats can slide forward up to 135 mm and be folded in a 6:4 ratio.

A front trunk offers 57 litres of capacity for shopping bags and the like.

The 125kW/350Nm electric motor drives the rear wheels, and the 58 kilowatt hour battery has a driving range up to 384km.

Hyundai says the 58kWh Ioniq can accelerate from 0 to 100km/h in 8.5

Charging is where the Ioniq 5 should outpace its rivals. It has an 800 Volt battery allowing faster charging on hyper-chargers, with a converter allowing the car to charge normally on the 50kW units that make up the bulk of NZ's charging network.

With a 350kW charger, the loniq 5 can charge from 10% to 80% in 18 minutes, only needing five minutes' charging to get 100km of range.

OUTSIDE

Hyundai says the Ioniq 5's exterior design pays homage to and was inspired by the proportions of its first all-new mass-produced car, the Pony.

Styled by ItalDesign Giugiaro, the Pony began series production in 1975.

The front of the Ionia 5 is equipped with Hyundai's first clamshell bonnet that minimises panel gaps for optimal aerodynamics.

The front bumper is defined by a V-shape incorporating distinctive daytime running lights (DRLs) that provide its unique light signature. These small pixel-like clusters also appear at the rear of the vehicle.

On the sides, flush door handles provide clean surface styling and enhanced aerodynamic efficiency.

The aero-optimised wheels echo the Parametric Pixel design theme and are offered in a 20-inch diameter, the largest rims yet fitted to a Hyundai EV.

INSIDE

Thanks to the E-GMP platform that enables a flat floor where the Ioniq 5's traction batteries are stored, Hyundai could create what it calls a Living Space interior rather than the usual conventional design theme found in vehicles with internal combustion engines and conventional steer-by-wire systems.

The combined central touchscreen and digital instrument cluster work well and look good but it don't feel as well integrated as those you find in other brands.

Many of the interior touchpoints seats, headliner, door trim, floor and armrest – use sustainably sourced materials, like recycled PET bottles, plant-based yarns and natural wool yarns, eco-processed leather with plant-based extracts, and bio paint with plant extracts.

The 58kWh base model comes with a durable yet comfortable grey cloth upholstery which looks and feels more practical than the light coloured cabins of its more expensive siblings.

It also does without seat heating and ventilation but that didn't bother us as the seats themselves are incredibly comfortable and supportive.

A Universal Island moveable console complements the simple centre fascia with gear selector located behind the steering wheel.

The sliding console allows passengers to enjoy more flexibility and enter and exit the cabin freely on either side when parked in a narrow spot.

Second-row passengers also can enjoy centre console features, including cup holders, a 15 W fast wireless phone charger and USB ports.

THE DRIVE

The Ioniq 5 is equipped with the next level of Hyundai's SmartSense, advanced driver assistance system which underpins its five-star ANCAP safety rating.

It's also the first Hyundai with Highway Driving Assist 2 (HDA 2). Other driving assistance systems include forward collision-avoidance assist (FCA), intelligent speed limit assist (ISLA), driver attention warning (DAW), and high-beam assist (HBA).

There's very good throttle response and an engaging steering feel for a family and fleet focused SUV, but it offers far more ride comfort than the sporter Model 3 and 14 sedans offered by Tesla and BMW.

One nice feature is the adaptive cruise control's ability to slow the loniq 5 using the regenerative brakes when following other vehicles, even when the system isn't engaged.

The lane keeping assist is accurate on winding roads but it will remind drivers to keep their hands on the wheel through tight corners.

OUR VIEW

Though the 58kWh Ioniq 5 is missing some of the nice-to-have elements of its more expensive siblings,like fancier seating, leather upholstery, panoramic glass sunroof, more engine/battery power, all-wheel drive, it has more than enough need-to-have equipment and features for fleet application.

Viewed through the fleet lens, the base model Ioniq 5 answers the requirements for a safe and comfortable vehicle for up to five people, with good boot space, and more than adequate electric range for daily driving.

And it looks a bit different from the norm which will broaden its appeal for many people.
